Great fun at Rhyme-a-thon

I AM an Argentinean mum living in Greenwich with my husband and my nine-month-old baby. I would like to thank you for keeping me informed of all the activities that the Council organises in the borough. Last Friday I took my baby to the Rhyme-a-thon, at the Queen's House. She enjoyed it so much! Finally, I would like to tell you that, in an effort to try to help other Spanish speaking parents who might feel isolated (because they have just arrived to London or maybe because they still have problems learning the language), this month I have launched 'Londres con Chicos' (London with kids), the first website in Spanish for parents living in London, where you can find all kinds of activities to do with small children:

reviews, advice from experts, and a lot more. I hope you can publish this information as I think it might be useful for your Spanish speaking readers who live in Greenwich. The address is www.londresconchicos.co.uk
